

Why do games like Crazy Time appeal to the public?

Since the first officially recognized casino opened on Italian soil in 1638, gaming activities have grown and spread throughout the world over the centuries.

Land-based establishments thrive in many parts of the world, so much so that some localities base their economies on this industry. For example, Macau and Singapore, or Las Vegas and Atlantic City in the United States.

However, every self-respecting economic sector is constantly changing, and the gambling industry is no exception. Over the past 30 years, it has been profoundly transformed, particularly when we think about live streaming entertainments such as Crazy Time or Monopoly Live.

Live casinos won over bettors

The first online casino in history was launched in 1994, and since then, online gaming has grown exponentially. Currently, the global landscape offers numerous virtual casinos and betting rooms that can be accessed from anywhere.

What is needed is a stable Internet connection and a gaming device. Among the strengths of these iGaming portals, we have 24/7 availability since many people like to play only during specific time slots, such as in the evening or at night.

In addition, wait times are truly zero for most forms of entertainment, as opposed to land-based establishments, with a limited number of seats at the gaming tables.

The best live game providers such as Evolution, NetEnt, or Microgaming, to name a few, in addition to successful formats, also provide interesting statistics for players wishing to bet on their titles.

One example is the live statistics, which allow you to observe the progress of gaming sessions. In fact, if we are talking about Evolution's wheel of fortune-based title, Crazy Time live Stats every day are consulted by potential gamblers globally to implement their own betting tactics.

How does Crazy Time work?

A dealer acts as a moderator guiding participants through the stages of the game and is responsible for operating the wheel of fortune each session. The layout has 54 segments and an online mini-slot above the wheel with two reels.

The latter are activated simultaneously, defining a Random Multiplier each spin for a number field or select a Bonus. If the horizontal line on the two reels meet a Multiplier will be triggered and at the end of the round, a winning field will be displayed.

Those who have bet on that section will get a prize. In addition, the winnings can be expanded by the Multiplier. If the wheel stops on the Bonus, the corresponding one, will be activated only for those who have got the winning section right.

The 4 Bonus rounds are mini-games called: Pachinko, Cash Hunt, Coin Flip and Crazy Time.

The role of Crazy Time Stats

Given the complexity of such dynamic gameplay, many bettors rely on Crazy Time Stats to make their bets. This is an exclusive and free service that any gamer interested in this format, can take advantage of. In fact, Crazy Time Stats give the opportunity to observe what is happening in real time in the games, so as to better define the betting system and optimize the budget available. As much as this data is useful to see the progress of the sessions, let's remember that it is not enough to rely on it to win, since we are still talking about formats based on luck where each spin is independent of the other.
